(9A) Abstract

Employer feedback is vital to a university to improve the quality of instruction and to enhance its curricula. This study was conducted to determine the personal information of the employer in terms of their position and where the graduates are connected. In addition, this study is to identify the performance, dedication, initiative, communication skills, teamwork, responsiveness, character, and overall performance of the BEED graduates of CAPSU Pontevedra for the year 2015-2019. The study utilized the descriptive survey method with a researcher-made questionnaire used to gather the needed data through Google Forms. The results showed that the majority of the evaluators were the School head or Teacher in charge mostly connected in the DepEd. For the feedback from the employers, the ratings were outstanding and very good. The graduates of teacher education specifically in the BEED program performed outstandingly in their respective jobs.

performance, dedication, initiative, communication skills, teamwork, responsiveness, character, and overall performance

(10) Introduction

The quality of education provided by higher education institutions may affect the quality of the employability of its graduates. Producing employable graduates has now become an important part of any University or College concerns in the education processes. The full educational spectrum of values starts from imparting knowledge and understanding, to developing skills and attitudes. With the growing and increasing number of graduates, competition for jobs has become fiercer and employers today, look not only for academic achievement but for other attributes and soft skills such as the demonstration of key workplace skills namely communication, problem-solving, and teamwork since these attributes are now essential requirements for enhancing a student's employability. The institution is also responsible for justifying and documenting the qualifications of faculty who are instrumental in accomplishing the institution's mission and goals. An environment conducive to learning is a huge factor to consider for education to be more effective, this is the reason why students' time and space should be allowed so that interaction within the learning and teaching process is developed.

Statement of the Problem

This study aimed to answer the following questions:

1. What profile can be obtained from the respondents in terms of:
 - a. Position of evaluator
 - b. Employment Agency
2. What is the employer's feedback on the teacher education graduates specifically the BEED of CAPSU Pontevedra in terms of:
 - a. Performance
 - b. Dedication
 - c. Initiative
 - d. Communication Skills
 - e. Teamwork
 - f. Responsiveness
 - g. Character
 - h. Over-all Performance

(11) Materials and Methods or Methodology

This study used the descriptive survey research design to describe the profile, and feedback of the employer to the teacher education graduate of CapSU Pontevedra. A researcher-made questionnaire through Google Forms was utilized as a data gathering instrument. The respondents of the study were 22 employers of the graduates of the College of Education, Arts, and Science under the BEED program of CapSU Pontevedra Campus of batch 2015 to batch 2019. The data were computer-processed using the Statistical Package for Social Science (SPSS) for reliable and accurate data analysis. Descriptive statistics such as frequency counts, percentages, and mean were employed in analyzing the quantitative data.

CATEGORIZATION AND SCORING OF VARIABLES

For the scoring of the responses for the performance, dedication, initiative, communication skills, responsiveness, character and overall performance the following rating were used:

RATING	VERBAL INTERPRETATION
5	Outstanding
4	Very Good
3	Good
2	Poor
1	Very Poor

To interpret the employer's feedback in terms of performance, dedication, initiative, communication skills, responsiveness, character, and overall performance the following scale was made:
