II. RATIONALE

In the Philippines, education is a very important endeavour to the Filipino. Every parent in this country strives to send his children to school in order to finish a degree. Philippines government continuous to invest significant resources to improve quality access to basic education. However, there are gaps in the educational system revealed in the academic performance of Filipino school children as measured by the National Achievement Test (NAT) and the Programme for International Students Assessment (PISA)

Based on the PISA released on December 3, 2019, the Philippines scored the lowest among 79 countries in reading comprehension. In terms of mathematics and science, we are ranked as second lowest.

Studies and fact- finding commissions have shown that the deteriorating quality of education are the outcomes of poor quality of teachers; poor management of schools; poor school facilities such as laboratory and library; poor learning environment; the context of curriculum; inadequate books and science equipment; poor method of instruction; shortage of classroom and others. Also due to limited access to an inaccurate education due to inequality and discrimination although education is a universal human right.

It is common to see how children with disabilities are deprived to education. There are still schools that refuse to accept students with special needs. Several factors can influence in the incidence of this scenario, such as discrimination, unprepared teachers to accommodate these children and lack of appropriate facilities.

One of the important consideration for quality education is the calibre of the teachers and the leaderships of every school heads.

Teachers needs strive well in order to be equip with the require skills and knowledge to learn and unlearn. They need to update themselves with the 21st century pedagogical approaches to ensure learnings of our millennial clientele, our students.

Considering the gap of the generations of our students from us educators, therefore we need to learn well to cope the gap and to unlearn our learning from old schools. Therefore training, seminars and workshop likewise further schooling are in need to prepare them to ensure effectiveness of learning.

When it comes to teachers, the biggest challenge is that they are not trained to provide basic education (Math, Reading and Listening Skills) to children .

Teaching has often referred as the “Most notable of all Profession.”To ensure efficient and effective learnings our novice teachers and school heads they need to be equipped with skills in handling their responsibility to ensure effective learning for our students.

Researches in education have a long recognized the leadership of school principal as a key element to an effective school- a school that performs its mission for the students (The Wallace Foundation, 2018)

Hence, our institution Capiz State University is holding the responsibility of extending program to address this issue as a learning institution with quadruple functions is dedicated to serve the community through its extension program particularly in the College of Education, Arts and Sciences. With L.I.T.E.R.A.C.Y. as its banner program it is deemed necessary to deliver education services.
